

ANCPL Membership System

The ANCPL currently has a membership system with the following features. The system also has a shop and member payment system which is turned off until such time as the organisation is formalised. The below screenshots illustrate the feature set. Confidential information has been blanked out.

Basic Member Features

1. Member details screen

This screen shows the basic member details and allows the member to upload further information such as academic credentials.

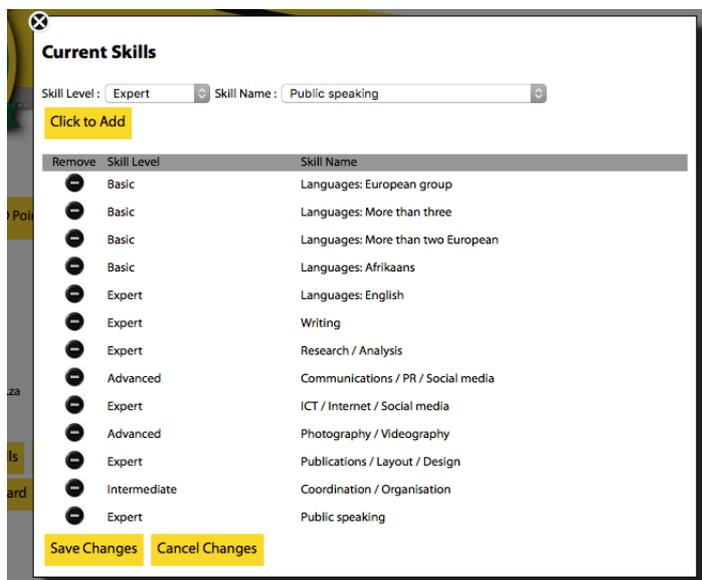

My Details

Name : John [blacked out]
Date of Birth : 27 April [blacked out]
Cell Number : 0825 [blacked out]
Email Address : john@[blacked out]
Physical Address : None

- Edit My Details
- Edit My Skills
- View User Profile Image
- Edit My Academic Record
- Edit My Work History
- Edit My References
- Click to Download Member Card

2. Edit Skills

The “edit skills” screen lets the member select their skillset if they want to advertise themselves as available for work - either volunteer work or paid. The skills currently are oriented around politics but any skillset in principle can be added to the list.

3. The “Edit my Details” screen.

This screen lets the member edit their details such as demographics, postal address, etc. This is where a member can mark that they are interested in finding work.

4. Member profile image

Members can upload their own photograph. This photograph appears on the jobseekers page and their membership card.

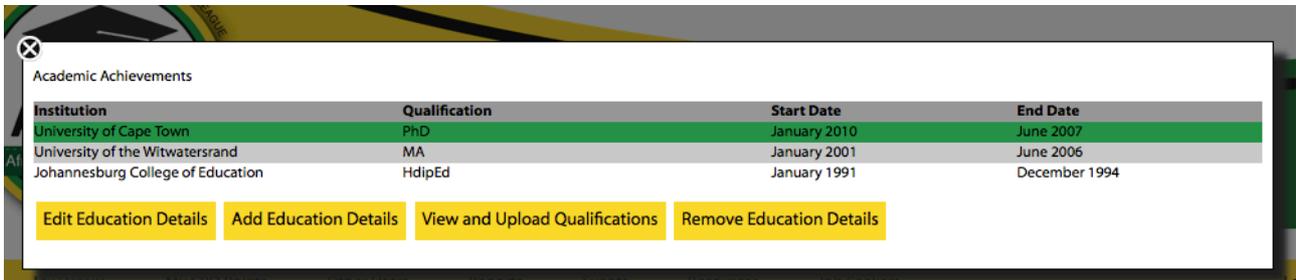

If the member clicks the “Download member card” button, it lets the member download a PDF of their membership card, shown above.

5. Editing Academic Record

Members can create a list of their academic achievements. They can upload scans of certificates as well.

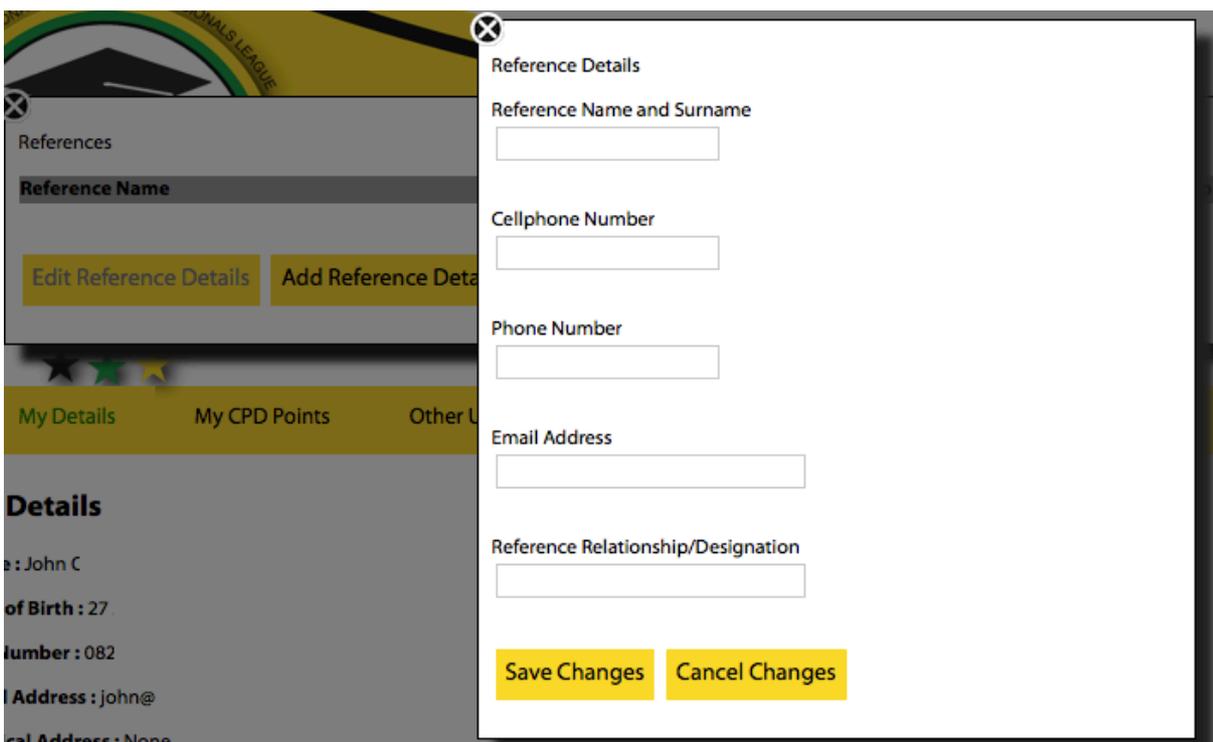

6. Work history

The member can provide their work history/experience...

...as well as list references from previous employment:

7. The Jobseekers Page

Once members have filled in their personal details, they then appear on the jobseekers page, if indeed they marked themselves as looking for work:

All Only Seeking Employment

The screenshot displays three user profiles in a grid. Each profile has a yellow 'Jobseeker' tag in the top left corner. The first profile shows a cartoon avatar of a man with the name 'Thabo' and a redacted name field. The second profile shows a photo of a man in a suit with a redacted name field. The third profile shows a photo of a man in a red and black polo shirt with a redacted name field. Each profile has a 'None' status and a yellow 'Connect' button at the bottom.

8. Continuing Professional Development Points

The system allows the organisation and the members to track their professional growth by granting CPD points based on attending formal learning or other such events.

9. Resources

Lastly, there is a resources screen (not shown) which shows files that are uploaded to the system for general consumption. These would be internal organisational documents which were not intended for public consumption but which are of interest to members. Such examples may be audited financial statements of the organisation, or NEC minutes. The screen simply allows members to download.

Administrative interface

The system has a number of administrative functions which make it easy to control, add, edit and remove members.

1. The “Other users” screen

This screen lets an administrator control, add, or modify other members. They can be sorted into different orders by clicking the top of each column of information. Here, the administrator can perform the same functions on any member, that they can perform on themselves; such as, edit skills, edit demographics, view information, download member card, etc.

3. Current events

System administrators can create events, specifically events that attract CPD points. When an event is created, the administrator can specify whether it earns CPD points and how many, where it is to be held, etc.

A related “Conference” application is available (not shown) which provides a similar service.
